ABSTRACT

5

Superconducting ceramics having relatively high critical temperatures are composed of rare earth metals, alkaline earth metals and copper. They have few defects and a limited polycrystalline interfacial area.